RESBYTERIANS WAKING UP.

$100,000 PLEDGED TOWARD $750.-000 EXTENSION FUND.

pr. van Dyke Says That New York, the Happy Hunting Ground of the Finan-gellst. Is a Splendid Place for a Live Church, but Has Coroners Handy.

Presbyterian churches of New York mitted their usual midweek prayer meetings last evening, at the request of the Presbytery, to unite in a mass meeting at Carnegie Hall in the interest of church extension with the aim of starting a fund which it is hoped to make $750,000. The meeting resulted in a collection of pledges and con-tributions to the amount of about $100,000, and the managers were so well pleased with this beginning that they led the meeting in the singing of the doxology twice.

The Church Extension Committee, which called the meeting, made these terse, if not arithmetically accurate, statements in its

In the face of rapidly increasing popu-lation, the Presbyterian Church has remained for the last ten years stationary.

In 1890 there were fifty-six Presbyterian one cher in Manhattan and The Bronx. In 1900 there were fifty-two. During these ten years the population increased 33 per More effectively to point their moral, the committee announced that in 1901 the Roman Catholic Church started to build three new edifices, and added: "The Hebrews added eight properties to the tax exemption list of the city." All the Protestant gains in buildings were balanced by losses during this period, the appeal said. The committee desired to raise $750,000 to start the Church on a forward movement, $395,000 of the sum to pay off old debts and the rest for new Carnegie Hall was filled on its main floor and in the two tiers of boxes and on the stage when the meeting opened, with Morris K. Jesup in the chair and the pastors and church officers seated about him on the platform. Mr. Jesup said in opening the Religion is better than finance, commerce, terature or art. From religion we make the best fathers and mothers, the best people, is well that the committee has called us it is well that the committee has called us together less as Presbyterians than as workers in a common cause. It is an indication that all past disputes and disagreements on non-essentials are put aside. The old Presbyterian creed is not dead. The needing signifies not only church extension; but church retention. Let us carry the banner—Presbyterian, if you choose, but I call it the banner of Christ—throughout this imperial city.

of Christ-throughout this imperial city.

Mr. Jesup introduced the Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke. Dr. van Dyke, who is short, announced himself by his title, which is long, saying that as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America he desired to throw whatever influence, or inflooence, he might have in that capacity in favor of the aim of the Church Extension Committee. The doctor explained his care in the proclamation of his title by saying that he expected to hold it only a few weeks longer and he, therefore, wished to get all he could out of its extended syllabification. Although now of Princeton, little old New York, the doctor said, was good enough for him, and he coined a word to describe the citylof his love. "It is the happy hunting ground," he said, "of the college president and the wandering finangelist." He continued:

In this age and in this community a shrinking enterprise is doomed to failure. The man of one talent who hides it in a napkin, if he lives in New York, doesn't have to wait for the Judgment Day to find out his mistake. A receiver sits on his property at once, and probably a Coroner on his body. [Laughter.] Put a church with spiritual sap in New York, let it keep the peace, pay its debts and do its work, and it will fill itself to the doors and you can't stop it. New York is not a hard place for a church, but a splendid place.

The Rev. Dr. Stevenson, of the Fifth

Avenue Presbyterian Church, said that the Presbyterian church property in the city was valued at $10,500,000, or $420 for each church member, but that the present generation had given practically nothing toward the acquisition of this property. Most of the church's money had come from the sale of downtown property for which other generations had paid.

The Rev. Dr. Richards of the Brick Church explained that the committee desired to establish three new churches in Harlem and four in The Bronx.

The Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle Smith men-sired to establish three new churches in Harlem and four in The Bronx.

The Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle Smith mentioned the success of the Methodists, who in eighteen months had raised $900,000 and had paid off the indebtedness of every Methodist church in New York (amounting to $670,000.) "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Methodist," he exclaimed.

The collection of pledges and contributions began, and in a few minutes a total of $90,000 was announced, in seventy-three gifts. Whole basketfuls of pledges and cash remained uncounted, so that it is probable that the total of contributions for the evening was well above $100,000.

It is significant that the Rev. Dr. John Hall's old church, the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian, contributed, through its membership, much more than half of the total sum as announced, or above $57,000. From this church came the largest single gift of the evening, $25,000, and two gifts of $15,000 each. The next largest gift was one of $10,000, from a member of Dr. Parkhurst's church.

Rutherfurd's sister-in-law, said to-day: There never was a marriage in my h and there never will be, so far as I know I have been denying this report for twentyfour hours now, and I am not going to deny it any further. The whole thing is impossible. Whoever heard of a marriage in a house in London, especially in an Embassy house?

"They are not going to be married in my house to-day, to-morrow, the 29th, or any other day. My denials are regarded as diplomatic? How else can I deny these stories? I know absolutely nothing about the matter. I do not know whether Mr.

Vanderbilt is engaged, or is about to marry, or anything at all about him." Mr. White spoke decisively and was bviously annoyed. The Archbishop of Canterbury has not issued a special license for the Vanderbilt-Rutherfurd wedding, nor has he received any inquiries on the subject. At the other iastical offices nothing has been heard in regard to the issuance of a license It is thought that the marriage will probably be a civil rite, as the religious authorities are not likely to issue a special license for a divorced person. Mr. Choate, the American Ambassador has the necessary powers to arrange for the solemnization of the marriage at the Embassy, if he is satisfied that there is any necessity therefor.

It is understood that the Vanderbilt-Rutherfurd marriage was arranged a fortnight ago, but the date for the wedding has not yet been fixed, so far as is known here. It is believed that the date will de pend on advices received by the incoming New York mails. It is thought that the wedding will take place in London soon.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN MANILA, April 22.-A telegram received at army headquarters announces that Lieut.-Col. Henry W. Sprole of the First Cavalry committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver at Taal, Province of Batangas. It is supposed Lieut.-Col. Sprole was temporarily insane.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Gen. Davis cabled the War Department this morning from Manila, saying that Lieut.-Col. Henry W. Sprole of the First Cavalry committed suicide there yesterday by shooting himself in the head during a period of temporary insanity. Lieut.-Col. Sprole was appointed to the Military Academy in 1865 from New York and was graduated in 1869 and assigned to the Eighth Cavalry. His record at the War Department says that he was un-married and that his family residence was 668 Carroll street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

He was promoted to be First Lieutenant in 1873, Captain in 1885 and Major in 1899. In 1890 he was brevetted Captain for gallant services against the Indians in Texas in 1874, and was promoted last year to Lieutenant-Colonel and assigned to the First Cavalry. He had been on duty in the Philippines for some time and had an excellent record

Lieut.-Col. Sprole was unmarried, and his brother, Capt. Daniel L. Sprole, a civil war veteran and principal of Public School 32, is his only relative in Brooklyn. Capt. Sprole said that he could not account for his brother's act, otherwise than that he was driven to despair through the breaking down of his health. The brothers corresponded regularly, although they had not met for twenty-five years. Capt. Sprole said he would make arrangements to have the body brought to Brooklyn for burial.

CALLS COMBINE SHIPS PIRATES. Member of House of Commons Says They Have No Right to Fly British Flag.

Special Cable Despatch to TEB SUN. LONDON, April 22 .- In the House of Comnons to-day Thomas Gibson Bowles complained that he had been unable to get the details of the arrangements with the Atlantic Shipping Trust. He said he feared the arrangement must be disadvantageous to Great Britain and that Gerald Balfour, the President of the Board of Trade, had neglected his duty in allowing the vessels of the combine to retain their port registry and continue to fly the British flag. Mr. Bowles said he thought these vessels legally had no flag at all and that they were to all intents and purposes pirates. Sir Robert Threshie Reid, Liberal, formerly Solicitor-General and also Attorney-General, said that any vessels flying the British flag were entitled to the protection of British officials the world over, and the Government was responsible for anything done by them that might be injurious to foreign Powers. Moreover, all the ships that had been transferred on this side to the Morgan trust were managed by per-sons who had their head office in this country and paid their income tax out of their profits.

Gerald Balfour, President of the Board of Trade, said he was sorry he had not laid the Morgan and Cunard agreements on the table. The Prime Minister had given an undertaking, however, that an oppor-tunity would be afforded for a discussion of the whole subject.

COLONIAL CLUBS DINNER TO THE "POST'S" EX-EDITOR.

Tells of His Experiences as a Young Re porter at the Lincoln-Douglas De-bates—Edward M. Shepard Writes That He's Not Much of a Politician.

Horace White, the retiring editor of the Reening Post, was the guest at dinner last night of the Colonial Club, and there were many speakers and letters from friends Among the guests were ex-Justice Book-staver and Justices Stover, Blanchard and Davis of the Supreme Court and Edmund

L. Laffin Kellogg, president of the club, presided. He had this to say about the press of to-day

The newspaper of the day is a greater educator of the people than all the schools and colleges of the earth. In its mission of public censor it is one of the greatest safeguards of public judgment. Before its far-reaching exposure men of power grow pale, and schemes and plans whose secretive venom has been exposed are abandoned and fade into shadow.

It is true that the press has been criticised for its venslity, for its lack of truthfulness, for the low standard of its news, for fallacies of every kind. The truth of this criticism cannot well be denied. But here, again, the press, arising to the needs of the situation, has become its own censor, and no stronger denunciation can be asked for than that which the press has visited upon itself.

Mr. White, in replying, said that so far as he was known at all by the members of the Colonial Club, it was as a journalist, and so he had decided to talk to his hosts about the early days of his career, when and so he had decided to talk to his hosts about the early days of his career, when it was his good fortune to follow the fortunes of Abraham Lincoln in the Senatorial contest of 1858 in Illinois. At that time Mr. White was a reporter on the Chicago Tribune. It was his good fortune to become the intimate friend of the great Lincoln. Of his experiences then Mr. White said:

Lincoln. Of his experiences then Mr. White said:

In 1858 Judge Douglas filled the public eye to a greater extent than any other living American, not excepting President Buchanan. His committee in Illinois advised him not to accept Lincoln's challenge to public debate, saying that if he did so he would lift Lincoln into a position of prominence which he could not otherwise gain. This sounds rather oddly now, but it was a true conception.

Lincoln could not have been nominated for President in 1860 if Douglas had not accepted his challenge. Lincoln was brought into the range of vision by his conflict with the Little Giant, but when he once came within the range of vision he remained there by reason of his own merits, and very soon he was recognized as the greater and better man of the two.

Mr. Lincoln was a many-sided man and one who presented striking contrasts. He was the most humorous being I ever met, and also the most serious. His humor was of the impromptu and contagious kind that takes possession of all parts of the person as well as all the parts of speech. As a master of drollery he surpassed all of his contemporaries in Illinois, and yet his solemnity as a public speaker and as a political and moral instructor was like that of an Old Testament prophet.

He was the only public speaker I have mstructor was like that of an Und Testament prophet.

He was the only public speaker I have ever known thus doubly gifted whose powers of mirth did not submerge or even impair his powers of gravity. "He combined within himself," says Mr. Henry C. Whitney, "the strangely diverse roles of head of the State in the agony of civil war, and also that of the court joster, and was supremely eminent in both characters.

Among the letters of regret was one from Edward M. Shepard in which Mr. Shepard referred to himself as being "not much of a politician."

politician."

Charlton T. Lewis, a former associate of Mr. White on the Post talked about "The Press of Old New York." He was optimistic, and said that while the influence of picturals. esque personalities in journalism was no longer felt, the power of the press for good is greater than ever.

Mr. Stedman was jocose and expressed the hope that in a few centuries more the world will be sufficiently toned up to accept the ideals of Horace White.

dissolved in a quart of water at a time.

She died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the hospital, but it was two or three hours later when Coroner Flaherty was notified of the case. He expressed much surprise that his attention had not been called to it when the young woman was received at the hospital, as it was known there at the time that she was suffering from poison. He also said that he should have been called to take her ante-mortem statement when her death seemed imminent. He said that he would make a sifting investigation. A committee of five book dealers was appointed last night at a meeting held at Anderson's Fifth avenue place to call on the Mayor and oppose the proposition to re-quire dealers in second-hand books to take out licenses, like junkmen. This committee is composed of Isaac Mendoza of 17 Ann street, Frederick D. Lacy of G. P. Putnams's Sons, S. F. McLean of 430 Sixth avenue, John R. Anderson of 4 West Fifavenue, John R. Anderson of 4 West Fifteenth street and J. O. Wright of East Forty-second street. The committee was also authorized to help any dealer who might get into trouble through attempted application to them of the ordinance relating to second-hand dealers.

The ordinance, if enforced in regard to the bookdealers, would limit them to purchasing between 7 A. M. and sunset and would forbid their purchasing outside of their stores, thus preventing them from going to private houses and buying. Second-hand books would have to be displayed for thirty days before being sold and be sold in the exact condition in which they were when purchased. He said that he would make a sifting investigation.

It was not until a late hour last night that the police of the Adams street station learned of the case and the report forwarded to headquarters was in accord with the facts given above, except that the names of the couple were given as Stanley Morehead and Irene Morehead.

The hospital authorities refused to give any information in regard to the woman's death or even to tell who the undertaker was who removed the body in the afternoon. Coroner Flaherty said that he had given no permit for its removal.

From a statement made to the Coroner by Dr. Searles there seems to be no doubt that the poison was taken with suicidal intent, and that shortly before swallowing it the young woman had quarrelled with her husband.

This theory seems to be confirmed by

This theory seems to be confirmed by statements of the persons living in the rooms at the hotel adjoining those occupied by the Morehouses.

The clerk at the hotel said last night that Mr. Morehouse had not returned to the hotel since the removal of his wife to the hospital and that he had understood that he had remained constantly with her at the hospital. Nothing whatever, it was said, was known at the hospital about the young man other than what has been stated. It was learned at a late hour last night that John C. Kuhlke, an undertaker, had removed the body to his shop in Court street, near Pacific.

Mr. Kuhlke said that the removal was made by a permit from Dr. Hartung, the Coroner's physician, and that he was simply keeping the body to await further orders.

The Mai-trink at its best is made of Moselle, champagne, orange juice, sugar, minced pineapple, whole strawberries and sprays of the herb called "waldmeister." To a three-gallon bowl of the mixture should go a quart of champagne.

The cheaper Mai-trink substitutes American white wines for Moselle and American champagne for the imported article, but the drink is found chiefly in the wein stuben frequented by those Germans who are

When properly made the Maitrink has a delicious blending of all the flavors that go to constitute it.

Those wein stuben which make a specialty of this drink keep it in fine big decorated earthen bowls, nearly immersed in tubs of cracked ice and always carefully covered. On warm spring days the Mai-trink sells fast. Ten or fifteen gallons is consumed in a single quiet wein stube frequented by conservatives of Avenue A.

It is just the right liquor to drink in celebrating the coming of a new inhabitant of the German quarter, or in honor of a betrothal, or in preparation for a christening, or upon any other occasion, sacred or profane. As a drink at Easter festivities it is unrivalled.

Some wein stuben keep it on tap all through May and well into June, just to give a fair chance to all their customers. To have missed the Mai-trink by reason of illness or absence is counted a misfortune.

Death of a Famous Snow Fighter.

Oscar Smalley, dairyman at Randall's W. C. Lydon, known to every railroad man Oscar Smalley, dairyman at Randall's Island, stepped into a small boat at the island last night with his hands in his pockets. He lost his balance and went overboard, swamping the boat. There were three other persons in it. Miss Grace McGuilder, a nurse, went to the bottom. Mate Sheehan of the Charities steamer Thomas F. Gilroy dived for her and got her, but she was unconscious at last accounts W. C. Lydon, known to every railroad man in the West as "Cole" Lydon, a pioneer employee of two great railroads, the Union Pacific and the Denver and the Rio Grande, died last night. From the Raton Hills to Wyoming Mr. Lydon was known as the greatest fighter of snow in this portion of the country. Soon after the Rio Grande road was extended westward Mr. Lydon was given a reward for faithful service, being appointed division superintendent, with headquarters at Leadville. This inaugurated his twenty-five years of battling with blizzards to keep the road open. but she was unconscious at last accounts at the Infanta Hospital. The fourth person who got wet was James Langdon, foreman of laborers.

Medical Records Show That Uric Acid in the Blood is a Swift Agent of Death.

Paine's Celery Compound

The Popular Spring Medicine, is the Only Reliable Blood Purifier.

In the springtime deaths from poison—urio acid in the blood—are common. Tais malignant poison, which should be expelled by the kidneys, is diffused through the blood, and when allowed to remain in the system, proves fatal. Taousands of men and women around us are now suffering from kidney-poisoned blood. Loss of nerve force, failure of appetite, nausea, constipation, pains in the back and side and depression of spirits, indicate that uric acid is doing its terrible work.

For such a condition in springtime, there is but one sure, tried and never-failing remedy, it is Paine's Celery Compound, which promptly restores the kidneys to health and enables them to perform their functions. With the kidneys in proper condition, there cannot remain the slightest race of uric acid in the blood. Mr. A. U. Winters, of Cincinnati, O., writes as follows about his wonderful cure—

"In March, 1902, I was dangerously ill, and my condition became so alarming that my family called in a specialist to confer with our family doctor. I was told that my kidneys were in very bad condition, and as a consequence, my blood was charged with uric acid. I was also suffering from rheumatism in back and arms. Getting no positive good from the doctors, a friend advised me to make use of Paine's Celery Compound. The use of the first bottle seemed to produce magical effects, and after I had used five bottles, I was strong and well. To-day, my blood is pure and clean, appetite hearty, I sleep well, and am gaining in flesh and strength every day. Paine's Celery Compound Saved my life, and I thank God for it. I always recommend it to sick people."

THE NEW KAISER IS A BEAUTY.

A YACHT IN HER LINES AND A HOTEL IN HER COMFORT.

Did About 28.80 Knots in the Last Hours -Director Fishr Doubts if Cunard Will Pay-Kalser's Letter to President

The multitude that greeted the new North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II. as she warped into the line's new pier at Hoboken yesterday, pronounce her a marvel of marine architecture. She suggests a great yacht in her lines, and, in her height, a big hotel affoat. Her commander, Capt. Högemann, said he had no doubt about her ability to beat records. Head seas, fog and a desire not to drive the new liner on her initial trip, were the reasons she didn't eclipse previous transatlantic performances. Justus Flohr, director-general of the Justus Flohr, director-general of the Vulcan Company of Stettin, which built the giantess, said she cost more than $4,000,000. He was unwilling to predict results, but intimated that she would come pretty close to averaging 24 knots between Sandy Hook and Plymouth or Cherbourg. She was not intended to be much faster than the Kronprinz Wilhelm, but was designed chiefly for the luxury and comfort of her passengers, from the occupants of the imperial suites to the plain folk in the steerage.

The projected Cunard ships of 25 knots, Mr. Flohr said, would have to have 74,000 horse power. Boilers and engines in a merchantman of this speed would take up so much room, he thought, that she couldn't carry enough passengers to make her profitable.

On the last several hours of her voyage, in smooth water from Nantucket to Sandy Hook, the new liner averaged about 23.80 knots, developing 42,400 horse power.

reason he came over on the new Kaiser, he said, was to see the engines "shaken down."

Maiden trips are seldom indicative of the ultimate power of the liner. The engineers and officers of the Kaiser, all of whom have served on other vessels of the line, are proud of her. They unite in declaring that she has less vibration than even the speedy Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. President George Plate of the North German Lloyd Line said she was a "perfect specimen of marine architecture."

She is certainly a handsome ship, inside and out, as Collector Stranahan, who boarded her from the revenue cutter Hudson, declared. The objects of the Collector's visit were to see how customs rules were working and to take a look at the splendid ship.

Germany's commissioner to the St. Louis Exposition, Herr Lewald, who arrived by the Kaiser Wilhelm II., bears a letter from the Emperor to President Roosevelt. Herr Lewald said that Germany would put up a permanent stone building at St. Louis. On Friday the new Kaiser beat at least one record, that of long distance communication between ships at sea. She talked six hours with the Atlantic Transport liner Minneapolis, bound east, sending twenty-five commercial messages. When the aerial hawser parted the ships were 210 miles apart.

Assembly district on Tuesday, said last night:

"All sorts of reasons have been given for Capt. Goddard's resignation as the outward head of the district. The real reason is that the Captain's friends want him nominated for President of the borough on the fusion ticket next fall. A good deal of work has been done quietly to bring about this result, and we have not the faintest doubt that if Capt. Goddard can secure the nomination he will be elected President of the borough."

MARRIAGE AND MORTALITY. Some Government Figures on "Causes of Death by Conjugal Conditions."

When the Government statisticians take tack away from the standard themes of population, manufacturers, illiteracy, agriculture, mining and the occupations inhabitants and enter into the realms of "causes of death by conjugal conditions," they are on what may be called dangerous ground. The figures which they furnish have all the attributes of accuracy and all the charm of interest and enlightenment, but they precipitate controversies of an extrahazardous and superperilous edge. Fortunately, perhaps, the conclusions to be deduced from them are not guaranteed—they are not insured.

One really interesting feature of the vital statistics report of the Federal Government is the fact that suicide among colored people is practically unknown in the United States. In a total of 5,500 suicides, only 149 were suicides of colored people. nicides of colored people.
